ABSTRACT:

The MedStar Health Research Institute was awarded a contract with AHRQ to provide program support and expertise related to improving diagnostic safety and quality across five distinct contract tasks. Task 5 of the contract is to develop, pilot test and promote a Resource to improve diagnostic measurement (the Resource). To execute this task, the contractor has assembled an interprofessional team to develop a brief, modular toolkit, that provides clinicians, quality and safety personnel, and healthcare organization leaders with three potential diagnostic safety measurement strategies to implement for the purposes of learning and improvement.

A qualitative approach to data collection (e.g., individual interviews and/or focus groups) and analysis will be used to pilot test the Resource and provide useful insights on stakeholders' perceptions and opinions, identify barriers and facilitators to adoption, receptivity to the Resource by stakeholders, as well as to explore general stakeholder feedback to enhance the usability of the Resource materials. The approach will not consist of statistical surveys that yield quantitative results that can be generalized to the population. Pilot testing will occur at up to 20 information collection settings and the feasibility of implementation will be assessed at the stakeholder and setting levels. The information collected from stakeholders will be used to revise the Resource in order to promote widespread adoption.
