NATIONAL SURVEY OF COLLEGE GRADUATES (NSCG)

Frequently Asked Questions

What is the National Survey of College Graduates?

Since the 1970s, the National Survey of College Graduates (NSCG) has been the most important source of information on the education and career paths of the nation's college-educated population. It is conducted by the National Science Foundation (NSF), an independent agency of the U.S. government that supports research and education. The U.S. Census Bureau serves as the data collection contractor for the NSCG on behalf of NSF.

How is the information used?

The information you provide will be used to...

- Deliver important information about the education and career paths of college graduates,
- Study the relationship between education and career opportunities in the United States,
- Assist people in making education and career choices,
- Inform decisions about how to best use limited resources in the areas of research, education, and job training

For other uses and more information, visit <http://www.census.gov/nscg>.

Who should participate?

We collect data on the entire college graduate population, including people with international degrees, non-STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) degrees, and people who are or were retired. You were randomly selected to participate, and you represent hundreds of other college-educated people in the United States. We cannot replace you with another person because it would harm the quality of the data we collect. Your response is voluntary, and there is no penalty for not answering individual questions. The success of this survey depends on your response.

Will my information be kept confidential?

Yes, your personal information and responses to the survey are confidential. The information collected in this questionnaire is solicited under the authority of the National Science Foundation (NSF) Act of 1950, as amended. The Census Bureau is collecting this information under the authority of Title 13, Section 8 of the United States Code (U.S.C). The Census Bureau is required by law to keep your information confidential and can use your responses for statistical purposes only. The Census Bureau is not permitted to publicly release your responses in a way that could identify you. Federal law protects your privacy and keeps your answers confidential (Title 13, U.S.C, Section 9). Per the Federal Cybersecurity Enhancement Act of 2015, your data are protected from cybersecurity risks through screening of the systems that transmit your data.

How long will this survey take?

Although individual times may vary, the average time to complete the online survey is 20 minutes. The average time to complete the paper questionnaire is 30 minutes. Send comments regarding this burden estimate or any other aspects of this collection of information, including suggestions for reducing this burden, to the Reports Clearance Officer, Office of the General Counsel, National Science Foundation, 2415 Eisenhower Avenue, Alexandria, VA 22314.

Additional information about this survey

Under 5 Code of Federal Regulations 1320.5(b), an agency cannot conduct, sponsor, or require a response to a collection of information unless the collection displays a currently valid Office of Management and Budget (OMB) approval number. The OMB approval number for this survey is 3145-0141 and the expiration date is xxxxxxxx

More about the National Survey of College Graduates (NSCG)

Is this a legitimate survey?	You can call 1-888-262-5935 or email nscg@census.gov to verify that NSCG is an official government survey. You can also find out about the survey at census.gov/nscg .
Who conducts this survey?	The NSCG is conducted by the National Science Foundation (NSF). NSF is an independent agency of the U.S. government that supports science and engineering across the country. The U.S. Census Bureau collects and processes the survey data on behalf of NSF.
What authority do you have to collect these data?	The NSCG is collected under the authority of the National Science Foundation Act of 1950, as amended. The Census Bureau is conducting this survey under the authority of Title 13, Section 8 of the U.S. Code. The NSCG has been approved by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB number XXXX-XXXX, approval expires on XX XX, XXXX).
Who do you ask to complete the survey?	We collect data on the entire college graduate population, including people with international degrees, non-STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) degrees, and people who are or were retired. Your information is valuable for the survey.
Can you select someone else besides me?	You were randomly chosen to represent hundreds of other adults like you. Once a person has been selected for the survey, we cannot replace them with another person because it would harm the quality of the data.
Will my response be kept confidential?	Yes. The Census Bureau is required by law to keep your information confidential and can use your responses for statistical purposes only (Title 13, U.S. Code, Section 9). Responding to the survey is voluntary and failure to provide some or all of the requested information will not in any way adversely affect you. Per the Federal Cybersecurity Enhancement Act of 2015, your data are protected from cybersecurity risks through screening of the systems that transmit your data. For more information on the Census Bureau's Data Protection and Screening principles, please see our data protection website at https://www.census.gov/privacy/ .
How is the information used?	Government officials use the survey data to make decisions about how to best use limited resources to improve research, education, and job training. Researchers use the survey data to study the relationship between education and career opportunities. Any individual can use the survey results to help make a decision about their own education or career path.

Washington, DC 20233-0001

In a few days, you will receive a mailing from the U.S. Census Bureau asking for your help with the 2025 National Survey of College Graduates (NSCG). This survey collects information about how people use their education over time and as economic conditions change. Since the 1970s, the U.S. Census Bureau has conducted this ongoing study on behalf of the National Science Foundation (NSF).

If you do not receive additional information from us within two weeks or have any questions about the survey, please contact the Census Bureau between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. Eastern Time on our toll-free number at 1-888-262-5935 or send an email to nscg@census.gov.

National results from this survey, as well as more information about the NSCG, are available at NSF's website: <http://www.nsf.gov/statistics/srvygrads>.

Your participation helps form education-related policy decisions and ensures the validity of the results of this valuable national survey. We greatly appreciate your time.

Sincerely,

Robert L. Santos
Director
U.S. Census Bureau

You've been selected to participate in the National Survey of College Graduates. On behalf of the National Science Foundation, the U.S. Census Bureau conducts this survey to understand the education and career paths of college-educated adults in the United States.

What is this survey about? This survey collects information about how people use their education over time and as economic conditions change. Your participation helps inform education-related policy decisions.

When can I respond? We will send you another letter in about a week. The letter will include your Login ID and password so you can complete the survey online.

How long will it take? It should take about 20 minutes to complete the survey.

National results from this survey, as well as more information about the survey, are available at <http://www.nsf.gov/statistics/srvygrads>.

If you have questions, you can contact the Census Bureau either by calling our toll-free number (1-888-262-5935) between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. Eastern Time or by sending an email to nscg@census.gov.

Thank you for your participation.

Sincerely,

Please respond now

Recently, we sent you several requests for your participation in the 2025 National Survey of College Graduates. Your response is needed. We are asking that you complete this survey because your participation is critical to its success. If you have already responded, thank you.

National results from this survey are publicly available, providing information such as average salaries in over 28 fields and how they have changed over time. This can help inform the field of study for college students or career changes for professionals.

Please respond now by:

1) Going to <https://respond.census.gov/nscg> and entering your:

Login ID:

Password:

OR

2) Filling out the enclosed paper questionnaire and mailing it back in the postage-paid envelope provided.

Your individual response is important, even if you do not work, are retired, or work in a field that differs from that of your education or training.

For help or additional information, see the back of this letter for frequently asked questions, call, toll-free, 1-888-262-5935 from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Eastern Time, or send an email to nscg@census.gov.

Thank you for your contribution to this important national survey.

Sincerely,

Fourth Reminder
Please respond now

Did you know?

National results from this survey are publicly available.

Survey results include the average salaries for full-time employees based on their field of study, showing how salaries have changed over time.

These results can help college students or individuals seeking a career change to make a decision about what field to get a degree in.

Your response is important, even if you do not work, are retired, or work in a field that differs from that of your education or training.

We are following up with you because we had hoped to receive your response to the National Survey of College Graduates by now.

Please choose one way to respond:

1) Fill out the online survey at respond.census.gov/nscg

Login ID:

Password:

2) Fill out the enclosed paper survey and mail it back in the postage-paid envelope provided

Find out more about this survey on the back of this letter.

Fifth Reminder
Your response is critical

About four weeks ago, we asked you to complete the 2025 National Survey of College Graduates. Your response is critical and helps the U.S. government allocate resources to research and education programs for advancement opportunities for you and others in the U.S. If you have already responded, please ~~accept our thanks.~~

Respond by August 17th at <https://respond.census.gov/nscg>

Login ID:

Your response can help determine how U.S. graduation rates in various fields compare to other countries. It can also help identify areas for improvement in K-12 education to make our country more competitive.

If we do not receive your response in by August 17th, a Census Bureau representative may contact you.

The success of this national survey depends on your participation. We cannot substitute another college graduate for you. This survey helps policy makers and the public understand and quantify how people use their education as they age.

For additional information:

- email nscg@census.gov.
- call, toll-free, 1-888-262-5935 from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Eastern Time.

Thank you in advance for your response.
