Commenting as a livestock producer that has had multiple dealings with predators, I see large benefits of a survey asking real questions of what life is really like with predators. As livestock producers we have went through all steps and protocols to live seamlessly with the predators. But they are predators that are constantly evolving. The need for more accurate information from all parties involved is crucial. All parties involved in predator activity need to have all the detailed information to know how to exist in our environment for the safety of elk, deer, cattle and humans!
