PROJECT TITLE: Formative Research on Antimicrobial Resistance Among Human Health Providers, Consumers, and Policy Influencers

PURPOSE AND USE OF COLLECTION: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is requesting approval for a new generic information collection (gen-IC). The goal of this evaluation is to explore the mindsets—including knowledge, attitudes, and behaviors—among select priority audiences about AR and associated actions to combat it. This research builds on existing formative research to fill gaps and to explore potential messages and approaches to impacting relevant behaviors. This research will be used to inform both CDC's current AR communications as well as potential future communications efforts to increase awareness of AR and drive action to combat AR.

DESCRIPTION OF RESPONDENTS: There are three core audiences: human health providers and experts, consumers, and individuals working with and around those who shape federal health policy.

CERTIFICATION:

I certify the following to be true:

1. The collection is voluntary.
2. The collection is low-burden for respondents and low-cost for the Federal Government.
3. The collection is non-controversial and does not raise issues of concern to other federal agencies.
4. Information gathered will not be used to substantially inform influential policy decisions.
5. The study is not intended to produce results that can be generalized beyond its scope.

Name: Mike Ruddell, Vice President, KRC Research

To assist review, please answer the following questions:

Personally Identifiable Information:

1. Is personally identifiable information (PII) collected? ☒ Yes [] No
2. If Yes, is the information that will be collected included in records that are subject to the Privacy Act of 1974? [] Yes ☒ No
3. If Applicable, has a System or Records Notice been published? [] Yes ☒ No

Gifts or Payments:

Is an incentive (e.g., money or reimbursement of expenses, token of appreciation) provided to participants? ☒ Yes ☐ No

Focus group and interview participants will receive a monetary incentive of $75 for their participation. Survey respondents will also be compensated for their willingness to participate in the data collection. Incentive amounts are determined based on a variety of factors including the time that a respondent will dedicate to the response, the difficulty of reaching a given profile of respondent, and the urgency of the response. Such an incentive is a standard practice in the market research industry and helps to ensure efficient recruitment and ultimate participation among the qualified and scheduled participants. The incentive is also intended to offset the cost of personal or professional time taken to participate.
