APPENDIX A

Scope

Introduction: The SAVES Center will work collaboratively with demonstration sites to examine the policies and practices that support survivor physical and psychological safety, minimize disparities, increase financial security, and best meet survivors' self-defined goals. The study of anonymous information extracted from automated child support systems will assess client demographics and experiences with the program, including payment outcomes, enforcement activities, and timeframes for key events such as order establishment and payments. This study will help the SAVES Center to better understand the sociodemographic and child support case characteristics of custodial parents (CPs) and non-custodial parents (NCPs) in child support cases where a family violence flag is applied versus CPs and NCPs in child support cases where a family violence flag is not applied at SAVES demonstration sites.

Sample: Information on baseline patterns for DV cases and clients and their treatment in the child support system will come from extracts from automated child support systems generated in 2023, the first year of the SAVES demonstration project. The extracted information will be conveyed to CPR in an anonymous fashion with no personal identifiers or other information that could be used to ascertain the identity of the child support client and his/her case that is included in the extract. All data analyses will be conducted in an anonymous fashion and patterns will be reported for pooled statistical groups.

Timeline: Data extraction will occur twice (during year 3 and year 5 of the SAVES project). At both time points, the cases with a DV flag will be compared with samples of cases of similar size that are not identified as having a safety issue and lack a DV flag.

Potential Data Elements: The following is an inventory of potential data elements available in automated systems that CPR hopes to determine the extent to which could be extracted with relative ease. This list may be revised and simplified based on discussions with demonstration sites about what data fields are available and reliable.
