I am highly opposed to more data collection for the civil rights office. We already submit data every other year and the amount of time and effort will not get smaller with an annual upload. Unless the office of civil rights is willing to fund the staff necessary for more reporting, and can justify how this data could lead to any substantive changes, this is more effort without the appropriate pay off to students or organizations. School districts cannot endure the current level of reporting and constant guidance changing from state and federal offices of all levels of government.
