Re: ICI Comments on Form 1099-DIV: OMB Number: 1545-0110

Dear Andrés,

The Investment Company Institute¹ (ICI), in response to the IRS's request for comments on Form 1099-DIV (Dividends and Distributions)², requests optional reporting on Form 1099-DIV for regulated investment company (RIC) dividends attributable to income on federal obligations exempt from state tax.

Federal law prohibits state taxation of obligations of the United States Government.³ States with income taxes provide exemptions for interest and other income on federal obligations, and likewise, also exempt RIC dividends attributable to income on federal obligations.⁴ RICs are corporations which are permitted or required to designate certain dividends with specific tax character, such as capital gain dividends, qualified dividend income, and exempt-interest dividends, among others, to provide RIC shareholders with similar tax treatment as they would receive from investing directly in the assets held by the RIC.

¹ The Investment Company Institute (ICI) is the leading association representing the asset management industry in service of individual investors. ICI's members include mutual funds, exchange-traded funds (ETFs), closed-end funds, and unit investment trusts (UITs) in the United States, and UCITS and similar funds offered to investors in other jurisdictions. Its members manage $42.5 trillion invested in funds registered under the US Investment Company Act of 1940, serving more than 120 million investors. Members manage an additional $9.7 trillion in regulated fund assets managed outside the United States. ICI also represents its members in their capacity as investment advisers to collective investment trusts (CITs) and retail separately managed accounts (SMAs). ICI has offices in Washington DC, Brussels, and London.

⁴ See the attached 2025 ICI survey of state tax departments. Some states have additional requirements or limitations on claiming this state tax exemption, for example, requiring the RIC to hold a minimum percentage of its assets in federal obligations, or reporting the information on the state's equivalent of Form 1099-DIV.

Form 1099-DIV includes fields reporting many of these RIC dividends with special tax character, however, it does not include a field for reporting dividends attributable to income on federal obligations. Most asset managers sponsoring RICs have websites with tax information reporting each RIC's income from federal obligations, however, most RIC shareholders aren't aware that this tax information is available, and don't find it. RICs also provide this information to brokers, transfer agents, and other intermediaries. Many brokers and intermediaries provide this information to shareholders on a supplemental tax statement (not a 1099), which shareholders may not reflect on their tax returns. Some shareholders may not receive this information in any form, and unable to claim their state tax exemption, resulting in significant overpayments of state tax liability on income exempt from state tax under federal law.

Form 1099-DIV serves many important functions; it enhances tax compliance for both corporations reporting information and shareholders/taxpayers and the IRS receiving the information, consolidating most relevant tax information onto a single form. Adding an optional field to report RIC dividends attributable to income from federal obligations would further enhance state tax compliance with federal law. It would reduce shareholders' burdens of seeking out this information on their own, for those who know to look for it, and reduce overpayment of state tax resulting from the current information gap. Optional reporting seems most appropriate because federal law doesn't specifically require RICs or intermediaries to report RIC dividends attributable to income from federal obligations, although states acknowledge that such dividends are exempt from tax. Reporting this information on Form 1099-DIV addresses the IRS's request for comments on "[w]hether the collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the agency, including whether the information shall have practical utility." Optional reporting for RIC dividends attributable to income from federal obligations on Form 1099-DIV is both necessary and proper for both state and federal tax compliance and has significant practical utility.

We appreciate the opportunity to comment on Form 1099-DIV, and the IRS's consideration of these comments. We're happy to discuss this issue further at your convenience. Please contact us at michael.horn@ici.org or 202.326.5832 or katie.sunderland@ici.org or 202.326.5826 if you have any questions or would be willing to discuss these comments.

Sincerely,

Mike Horn

STATE-SPECIFIC INFORMATION

All Federal Obligations

Federal law prohibits states from taxing the interest derived from numerous federal obligations. Interest on many agency obligations, including the following, is generally treated as exempt from state and local taxes: Banks for Cooperatives, the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Federal Farm Credit Banks, the Federal Financing Bank, Federal Home Loan Banks, Federal Intermediate Credit Banks, Federal Land Banks and the Federal Land Bank Association, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, the General Insurance Fund, Government Services Administration (GSA Public Building Trust Participation Certificates), the Production Credit Association, the Student Loan Marketing Association, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the U.S. Postal Service, and the U.S. Treasury Department (bonds, notes, bills, certificates and savings bonds).

Threshold Requirements

If a state requires that any specific percentage of the RIC's (i) assets be federal obligations, or (ii) income be derived from federal obligations, before pass-through treatment is available, those requirements are set forth in the state-specific information below.

Reporting Requirements

Many states responded that RICs are required to provide shareholders with sufficient information for shareholders to correctly report their taxable income. Unless the state imposes additional reporting requirements, the notation for this category is recorded as "no."

Report Required for Exemption

Many states responded that shareholders must be able to substantiate any claimed exemption for the pass-through of federal obligation interest. Unless the state imposes additional requirements for exemption, the notation for this category is recorded as "no."

STATE-SPECIFIC INFORMATION

- California A RIC is qualified to pay “exempt-interest dividends” not subject to California tax if, at the close of each quarter of its taxable year, at least 50% of the RIC’s assets consist of specified obligations.
- “Exempt-interest dividends” must be reported by the RIC in a written statement furnished to shareholders.
- Connecticut For purposes of the Connecticut income tax, a RIC must have at least 50% of its assets in obligations exempt from state tax under federal law at the close of each quarter of its taxable year before any pass-through will be allowed. Conn. Gen. Stat. § 12-718.
- “Exempt-interest dividends” must be reported by the RIC in a written notice mailed to its shareholders not later than 60 days after the close of its taxable year. Conn. Gen. Stat. § 12-701(a)(14).
- Connecticut publishes a list of exempt federal obligations that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items. See Policy Statement 2005(2).
- Delaware Interest derived from obligations that are not backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government (for example, obligations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation) is not exempt from taxation in Delaware.
- The portion of the dividends of a RIC that represents U.S. government interest, which is exempt from the personal income tax, shall be as reported in writing to the holder or owner of the share or units of the RIC by or on behalf of the manager of the RIC, and such report shall state the dollar amount or percentage of exempt and nonexempt dividends pertaining to the taxpayer. 30 Delaware Code § 1106(b)(1)b.
- District of Columbia The exempt portion of the dividend is the actual amount attributable to exempt federal obligations if the RIC notifies the shareholders of that amount. If the RIC does not provide this information, the exempt portion shall be estimated by multiplying the total distribution by a fraction, the numerator of which is the amount invested by the RIC in exempt U.S. obligations and the denominator of which is the RIC’s total investment. This fraction shall be determined by taking the average of the percentage from the quarterly financial reports of the RIC.

- Georgia Only “direct” U.S. obligations and obligations which are exempt from state taxation by federal law are excluded. Direct and indirect interest expense attributable to this interest and dividend income reduces the exempt amount.
- Hawaii Hawaii publishes a list of exempt federal obligations that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items. See Department of Taxation, Tax Information Release No. 84-1. Sections 235-7(a)(1) and 235-7(a)(6), Hawaii Revised Statutes, provides an exemption from state income taxes on income that is exempt under the Constitution and laws of the United States.
- Idaho Only “direct” U.S. obligations and obligations which are exempt from state taxation by federal law are excluded. Direct and indirect interest expense attributable to this interest and dividend income reduces the exempt amount.
- Illinois The exempt portion of the dividend is the actual amount attributable to exempt federal obligations if the RIC notifies the shareholders of that amount. If the RIC does not provide this information, the exempt portion shall be estimated by multiplying the total distribution by a fraction, the numerator of which is the amount invested by the RIC in exempt U.S. obligations and the denominator of which is the RIC’s total investment. This fraction shall be determined by taking the average of the percentage from the quarterly financial reports of the RIC.
- Shareholders are required to attach to their state tax return a copy of their federal tax return showing receipt of the exempt income.
- Illinois publishes a list of federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items.
- Indiana Information in survey is provided with reference to individual adjusted gross income tax only.
- Indiana publishes a list of “direct” federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items.
- Iowa Iowa Admin. Code. r. 701-302.2(422) provides a list of federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items. More information about how to determine the taxable percentage of the distribution for Iowa tax purposes can be found in Iowa Admin. Code r. 701-302.2.

Kansas	Kansas Revenue Notice 12-89-3 provides a list of “direct” federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to that above under Explanation of Selected Items.
Louisiana	Interest and dividends on federal government obligations are exempt from Louisiana individual income tax per La. R.S. 47:293(9)(a)(iii). Pass-through exemption is allowed for amounts which are identified as income from investments in federal government obligations. If the amount is not identified specifically, it is taxable and cannot be excluded.
Maine	Maine exempts from tax interest and dividends attributable to income derived from direct federal obligations such as U.S. Retirement Bonds, U.S. Savings Bonds, U.S. Treasury Bills, etc. Interest derived from obligations of certain organizations created or sponsored by the U.S. Government is also exempt from Maine income tax. Shareholders must submit a breakdown of exempt dividends when claiming the exemption.
Massachusetts	Massachusetts requires as a condition for exemption that a report on the RIC’s income be sent to shareholders within 60 days of the close of the RIC’s tax year. Pass-through of the exempt character of interest on federal and Massachusetts obligations is permitted for individual shareholders only, not for corporate shareholders. As of January 1, 2024, Massachusetts generally conforms to the January 1, 2024, version of the IRC (previously conformed to 2022 IRC). See St. 2024, c. 140.
Mississippi	Mississippi requires that shareholders be sent a Form 1099 by February 1 containing the percentage of the RIC’s dividends that are exempt from tax.
Missouri	Missouri requires that a RIC provide written notice of the percentage of the RIC’s dividend exempt from tax within 60 days after the close of the RIC’s taxable year. Shareholders are required to attach a copy of their year-end statements to their Missouri income tax returns. Missouri publishes a list of federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items.
Montana	Administrative Rules of Montana 42.15.216 provides that interest on United States government obligations, and mutual fund dividends attributable to that interest, to the extent included in federal adjusted gross income are exempt from Montana income tax. Interest on obligations of U.S. territories and government agency obligations specifically exempted by federal law, and mutual fund dividends attributable to that interest, are also exempt from Montana income tax.

Obligations guaranteed by the United States government are not tax-exempt. Interest on, and mutual fund dividends attributable to, Government National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae) bonds, Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) bonds, and Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (FHLMC) securities are not exempt.

United States obligations that are exempt include:

- (a) series E, EE, F, G and H savings bonds;
- (b) U.S. treasury bills;
- (c) U.S. government notes; and
- (d) U.S. government certificates.

Nebraska Nebraska publishes a list of federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items. See Individual Income Tax Regulation 22-002.05 A \(1\) and Corporate Income Tax Regulation 24-048. The United States Supreme Court in Nebraska v. Loewenstein, 513 U.S. 123, 132-33 (1994), held that dividends derived from income earned on repurchase agreements backed by U.S. government obligations is not income from U.S. government obligations that is exempt from state tax.

Nevada Nevada has no state income tax, however, the 2015 Legislature enacted a gross receipts tax for business entities grossing more than $4,000,000 in Nevada sitused gross receipts. The tax is called the Commerce Tax and was enacted by SB483. The Commerce Tax is imposed on gross receipts in the regular course of business with no deductions for costs of goods sold or other business expenses.

The definition of “gross receipts” does not include income from dividends or interest on federal obligations. “Gross receipts” includes interest received on credit sales. It does not include capital gain distributions. Since it is not an income tax it also does not include distributions from certain retirement funds or tuition programs.

New Jersey Distributions paid by a mutual fund are exempt from New Jersey gross income tax to the extent they are attributable to interest earned on Federal obligations.

New Mexico	New Mexico requires that taxpayers be provided with a statement showing the amount of nontaxable income, by source. N.M. Admin. Code § 3.3.1.12.
New York	Information in survey is provided with reference to personal income tax provisions. At least 50% of the assets of the RIC at the end of each quarter of its fiscal year must be obligations of the United States and its possessions. A written notice of the amount of the exempt dividends must be mailed to RIC shareholders within 60 days after the close of the RIC's taxable year. New York publishes a list of federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items.
North Carolina	North Carolina requires that a taxpayer be provided with a statement verifying the amount of interest paid which is derived from direct obligations of the United States. The figure may not be based on the percentage of the RIC's assets invested in United States obligations.
Oklahoma	Reporting to the state and shareholder must be done on either Oklahoma Form 500 or federal Form 1099.
Oregon	Oregon requires that "state exempt-interest dividends" be designated in a written notice mailed to shareholders not later than 60 days after the close of its taxable year. ORS 316.683.
Rhode Island	Rhode Island does not require the RIC to provide a report of exempt interest/dividends. However, shareholders are required to attach proof of exemption and listing of securities to their tax returns.
South Carolina	South Carolina has published its criteria for tax-exempt obligations in Rev. Rul. 16-2 and includes a list of federal obligations exempt from state tax that appears similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items.
Utah	Exempt U.S. Government interest claimed as a deduction must be reduced by the following expenses if the expenses were claimed as deductions in arriving at federal taxable income:

- Interest on money borrowed to purchase or carry the bonds or securities
- Ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred in connection with producing exempt income.

Vermont	Vermont Technical Bulletin #24, dated April 20, 2014, provides a list of nontaxable interest.
Virginia	The dividends of a RIC may be taxable if the dividends are not wholly derived from federal obligations. Title 23 Virginia Administrative Code 10-110-142 provides that tax-exempt interest (whether from federal or Virginia obligations) distributed by a RIC will be treated as tax-exempt interest to its shareholders domiciled in Virginia. However, when taxable income is commingled with exempt income all income is presumed taxable unless the tax-exempt portion of income can be determined with reasonable certainty and substantiated.
West Virginia	West Virginia publishes a list, Technical Advisory No. 93-002, of federal obligations exempt from state tax similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items. This Technical Advisory indicates that the income paid on certain FNMA and GNMA participant certificates is exempt from tax.
Wisconsin	Wisconsin publishes a list of federal obligations exempt from state tax in sec. Tax 3.095 , Wis. Adm. Code that is similar to the list above under Explanation of Selected Items.
