I only want our government to step aside and let the private sector handle the truck parking problem! We've known this was a problem for decades, and the fact that you're just now getting to this, is an embarrassment! I've seen government solutions first hand! I travel a particular section of interstate, quite frequently, and on one exit is an on and off ramp where trucks would park! Instead of coming up with an actual solution to this problem, the government put up no parking signs on the ramps, taking away more parking spaces and adding to the problem! The problem was finally solved, when a private company built a truck stop off that very same exit! Now drivers not only have "sixty" parking spaces to choose from, but they also have a place to fuel up, go to the bathroom and even shop for things they need! So, I don't need another government survey wasting my tax payer dollars, to "assess" a problem, when private industry is already taking steps to "solve" the problem! In my opinion, just call off the survey and let private companies do what government has failed to do for decades!
