I appreciate receiving an opportunity to comment on this subject matter. First off, I would like to say that I do support APHIS' efforts to protect safeguards against destructive plant pests. However, would these studies that take place verify that treatment facilities meet the necessary standards? Would they also be willingly to provide the necessary documentation for the staff at the new facilities to help the transition run smoothly? I imagine if these verification steps take place, then APHIS would have a much better study results.
