General Comment

I strongly support continued federal protection and regulation of bald and golden eagles through the Eagle Act permitting system. Eagles are iconic wildlife species that fulfill important ecological roles, and the preservation of wildlife species, such as these, is an investment in maintaining our nation's natural beauty. Renewing this information collection system is essential because it ensures that the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service has the necessary data to assess permit applications, monitor compliance, and protect eagle populations. I urge the USFWS to maintain and strengthen permitting requirements that uphold eagle conservation and ensure that any information collection continues to contribute to effective oversight and decision-making.
