

CDC/NCHS/CCQDER Response

Thank you for your supportive and thoughtful comment regarding the Collaborating Center for Questionnaire Design and Evaluation Research (CCQDER). We appreciate your recognition of the importance of high quality questionnaire design in producing valid, reliable, and policy-relevant public health data.

CCQDER remains committed to advancing respondent centered survey design through cognitive interviewing, methodological evaluation, and the development of clear and accessible data collection instruments. We share your emphasis on minimizing respondent burden while maintaining- scientific rigor, and we will continue to ensure that our methods support accuracy, transparency, and public trust.

We appreciate your engagement in the Federal Register review process and your support for continued investments in high quality- public health data collection.
