Thank you for accepting comments on this important matter. I support renewal of the information collection requirements for all experimental populations, including those specific to gray wolves and grizzly bears. This information collection is vital for the proper performance of agency functions and has clear, practical utility. This data is essential to evaluating conservation outcomes, improving general management and conflict mitigation strategies, and ensuring accountability under the Endangered Species Act.

The estimated burden of thirty minutes for reporting, and thirty minutes for record keeping appears to be understated. A more realistic estimate is about one hour for reporting, and one hour for record keeping, given the time required to compile records, verify information, and ensure accuracy.

Thank you for your time and consideration, and for your continued work to conserve imperiled wildlife.
