Under section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Social Security Act (Act), we must exclude evidence from certain medical sources unless we find we have good cause to consider it.

Sections 404.1503b and 416.903b of our regulations, 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1503b and 416.903b, set forth when we may find good cause. They also require medical sources that fall within one of the categories listed in section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act to abide by certain reporting requirements.

Failure to self-report may result in referral to our Office of the Inspector General (OIG) for investigation and possible penalty.

Background

The Secretary of the Department of Health & Human Services (HHS) or our OIG informs us of medical sources that fall within one of the categories listed in section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act.

Section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act mandates that, absent good cause, we cannot consider evidence furnished by a medical source who:

- was convicted of a felony under sections 208 or 1632 of the Act; or
- was excluded from participating in any Federal health care program under section 1128 of the Act; or
- was imposed with a civil monetary penalty(CMP), assessment, or both, for submitting false evidence under section 1129 of the Act.

Sections 404.1503b and 416.903b of our regulations, 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1503b and 416.903b, define when we may have good cause to consider these sources' evidence.

Specifically, we may have good cause to consider evidence furnished by these sources when:

1. the evidence covers treatment that occurred before the source's felony conviction under section 208 or 1632 of the Act
2. the evidence covers treatment that occurred when the source was not excluded from participating in any Federal health care program under section 1128 of the Act,
3. the evidence covers treatment that occurred before the source received a final decision imposing a CMP, assessment, or both, for submitting false evidence, under section 1129 of the Act,
4. the sole basis for the exclusion of the source's evidence under section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act is that the source cannot participate in any Federal health care program under section 1128 of the Act, but the Office of Inspector General of HHS granted a waiver of the section 1128 exclusion, or
5. the evidence is a laboratory finding(s) about a physical impairment(s) and there is no indication that the finding(s) is

Background +

What We Need from a Medical Source that Falls Within One or More of the Categories Listed in Section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act ×

Each time a medical source that falls within one or more of the categories listed in section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act submits evidence for a Social Security disability claim, the source must attach a written statement indicating that the source falls within one or more of these categories.

The source must provide this statement with the source's evidence regardless of whether the source submits the evidence to us directly or through a representative, claimant, or other individual or entity.

We will use this statement to determine whether good cause exists to use the source's evidence when determining disability. Thus, it is vitally important that sources submit this statement, and their evidence, to us.

To make it easier for sources to comply with this requirement, we have developed model written statements for each of the categories listed in section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act. Although not required, sources that fall within one or more of these categories are encouraged to use these model statements. The statements may be found under this paragraph and on the right-hand side of this webpage, under the heading, "Publications."

OMB Control No. 0960-0803

Under section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Social Security Act (Act), we must exclude evidence from certain medical sources unless we find we have good cause to consider it.

Sections 404.1503b and 416.903b of our regulations, 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1503b and 416.903b, set forth when we may find good cause. They also require medical sources that fall within one of the categories listed in section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act to abide by certain reporting requirements.

Failure to self-report may result in referral to our Office of the Inspector General (OIG) for investigation and possible penalty.

Note

The requirements explained on this webpage and the downloadable Fact Sheet apply to medical sources that fall within one of the categories listed in section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act. The only requirement that also applies to individuals applying for or receiving Social Security disability benefits or payments, and their representatives, is that they must not remove a medical source's written statement (the statement that indicates the source falls within one or more of the categories listed in section 223(d)(5)(C)(i) of the Act) before submitting evidence from that medical source to us.
