General Comment

National Wildlife Refuges were reserved to benefit and be enjoyed by all Americans and support the wildlife that depends on these areas for their survival. These areas should remain undisturbed by private corporations. Pristine open spaces are important landmarks of our country, deemed so by past presidents to help ensure of the beauty of our states and provide space for wildlife. Americans of both political parties, from all social classes, and from all backgrounds, enjoy these areas, so please leave them untouched and protected from corporate greed.
