I. Expected Outcomes

List any expected results from the activity that you plan to measure or calculate, which should be aligned with your specific project objectives. The supplemental instructions for this form include a list of example outcome categories.

Load reduction of various nutrients in the Metropolis River Basin: nitrogen, phorphorus, general sediment.

Increased number of recreational users of the Metropolis River Basin.

Increased understanding of the role of local stakeholders.
Collaboration with local stakeholders in project proposal, implementation and/or future grant submission.
Increased knowledge and understanding for use of post-award databases.
SRF recipient can better collect, store, evaluate, and report data from their funded project.
Increased evaluation and reporting skills.

J. Methodology for Expected Outcome

Indicate the methdology you will use to measure or calculate your expected outcome. The supplemental guidance for this form includes example methods to measure or calculate different types of outcomes.

Scientific measurement

Document review (visitor logs)

Surveys conducted before the workshop will document CBO participants' baseline levels of understanding of their roles in identifying environmental concerns and developing projects to address these issues. The baseline results will be compared to levels of understanding measured by surveys after the workshop.
A follow up survey collected from the participating CBOs will ask about any grant submissions the CBO made or any grant money received. This follow up survey will also ask about any technical assitance the CBO may need to submit a grant proposal or implement a project addressing an environmental concern.
An intake survey will measure the county government officials' self-rated knowledge and understanding of post-award databases before the database is developed and implemented. A follow up survey, disseminated approximately a year after the database is developed/implemented, will measure the county government officials' self-rated knowledge and understanding of post-award databases. The differences between the two surveys will be measured to indicate an increase/decrease/no change in understanding.
Intake survey and follow up survey delivered one year after database implementation.
Intake survey and follow up survey delivered one year after database implementation.

K. Outcome Timeframe
Please indicate whether the expected results is a short-term outcome, intermediate outcome, or long-term outcome, based on the definitions provided by your EPA program. For more information, please refer to program guidance.
